- the ultimate experience

Many people associate Lofoten with the Midnight Sun, idyllic summers and visitors from all the corners of the world. However, if you want to experience the tough, genuine and original life of the many fishing villages, you should visit Lofoten outside of the hectic summer season!

Every autumn the herring and killer whales swim up the Tysfjord and Vestfjord to spend the winter here. From mid-October until mid-January, killer whale safaris set out from Lofoten in a large passenger boat and rubber dinghies. You will become part of a natural phenomenon as you study these enormous animals up close. An experience of several tones!

Go sea rafting in Lofoten! The open sea, steep mountains, narrow straits and luscious islets. Changing light and crystal-clear water.

Lofoten is also one of Norway's best and the world's northernmost sites for wave surfing! The waves are usually great and plentiful.

Try kayaking in Lofoten. The world's most stunning archipelago is waiting for you. You couldn't get closer to the ocean and the seals.

Experience the Viking Age as it really was! At Borg, archeologists have discovered the largest house ever found from this era. It is the house of one of the most powerful chieftains in Northern Norway. Experience a genuine chieftain's feast in the Banquet Hall. An event that will give you a good idea of the life of our rugged forefathers used to lead!

One of the world's largest seasonal fisheries takes place in Lofoten. From mid-February until the end of April, Lofoten is full of life. The arctic cod swims from the vast, nutritious areas of the Barents Sea in its millions, en route to the spawning grounds near Lofoten in order to continue the species. Fishermen from the entire coast of Norway participate in this traditional fishery. You can learn more about Lofoten in a historical perspective, for better or for worse, in the museums that describe the everyday life of traditional fishermen and farmers, and in the galleries, where artists have been inspired by this challenging way of life.

Come out to sea and try your luck at fishing! Experience the atmosphere and the excitement at the fishing area.

The greatest experience is actually just being in Lofoten at this time of year. Watch the fish being hung on the drying racks. Enjoy life in the harbour of the fishing villages. Chat with the local fishermen in one of the pubs.

Sun for breakfast, storm for dinner and a calm sea for supper. Enjoy Lofoten during winter time – welcome!

LOFOTEN

winter weather IN LOFOTEN

The winter weather in Lofoten often varies dramatically. In the western and southern parts, there is hardly ever snow and seldom any frost. The mountains in the east and north often don a winter coat, but even in these parts of Lofoten, the weather fluctuates between rain and snow throughout the winter.

Lofoten is not, however, dominated by a quirky and changeable climate. The winters are often characterized by long periods of easterly winds carrying stable weather and calm seas.

Dressing in Layers

Your base layer should wick sweat away from your body to keep your skin dry. Cotton should not be used - save your t-shirts for other purposes. Good long underwear pieces are appropriate.

Insulating layer will keep you warm and can be shed once you warm up. Wool, fleece, pile, down in a jacket, shirt or vest.

To protect you from the elements, wear a windproof and water resistant jacket. It should be worn loosely. If the weather is frigid, long underwear bottoms or tights underneath another pair of pants will keep you warm. Cotton and denim should be avoided.

A polar fleece hat with ear covering is an ideal winter headgear.

Mittens will keep your hands the warmest as the fingers work together to build up warmth. Look for windproof mittens.

Waterproof shoes or boots: If you join one of the outdoor adventures, it's a very good invest in a pair of waterproof walking or hiking shoes.

To remember....

The different activities and attractions are based on a minimum of one person participating.

The Skrei Fishing World Championship

- an adventure you should not miss!

The skrei (arctic cod) fishing World Championship is held annually in Svolvær. In 2008, the 17th world championship takes place the last weekend of March.

About 500 enthusiastic participants will take part in the event, but many many more will be present to enjoy the atmosphere along the piers, in the pubs and restaurants. The whole town is teeming with activities! You can come along to sea even if you are not doing any fishing - for example in a seagoing inflatable boat, dressed in thermal suit, watching the fishing fleet.

The local population of all ages will contribute with many local activities in the preceding week (we call it the Lofoten Adventure), and a number of concerts and art exhibitions will be held during that time.

From 7 December to 5 January the sun is below the horizon, causing the dark, blueish period in Lofoten. The dates can vary slightly from place to place. In clear weather in this period, the light is indescribably beautiful, with dancing bright pastel colours low down in the heavens. And do not forget about the Northern lights! When the sun returns in January the days quickly become longer and lighter, but the play of colours is not less spectacular...

Lofotr Viking Museum

Welcome to the Viking feast at Lofotr Viking museum

In iron-age Northern Norway there were about 10-15 chiefdoms, one of them was here at Lofotr. So far, this is the only place where the chieftains farm itself is found. Through excavations we have learned that the farm was established around 500 to 900 AD. One of the famous chieftains living at Lofotr was Olav Tvennumbruni.

The largest Viking house from the Viking age is fully reconstructed as a magnificent building. When you enter the Viking chieftain's house, it is like being transported back to the Viking Age. Light flickers from the hearths and gleams from the ceiling lamps, the smell of wood tar fills your nostrils. Meet the Chieftain and housewife of Lofotr. You can watch handicraft and listen to the sounds of food being made. A smell of broth pervades the house.

The Vikings have feasts to celebrate their goods in winter time. Welcome to the Viking feast at the Vikingmuseum

Svinøya Rorbuer - Basecamp Lofoten - Svolvær

Svinøya was granted its first victualler's licence in 1831. Today, Svinøya is still a small, vibrant fishing hamlet on an island in Svolvær harbour, but now there is a bridge across and it is only a short distance from the town centre. Here at Svinøya, we have welcomed visitors to our rorbu cabins and run the fishing station which is the very life nerve of the community, for almost 200 years.

Amid the fish racks and fish landing station you will find Svinøya Rorbu Hotel. Here you can stay in original or more recently built fishermen's (rorbu) cabins of high standard or hotel, surrounded by the sea and the mountains of Lofoten. In the old quayside warehouse that dates back to 1828, you will find our restaurant, Børsen Spiseri, one of Lofoten's most reputable fish restaurants. Unlike most other restaurants, Børsen Spiseri has access to fresh fish and stockfish from its own fish landing station. Our staff has long-standing experience within the field of tourism in Lofoten. We are specialized in tailor-made adventures for individual and groups. Based on our high standards, accessibility all year round, location and local knowledge we aspire to be your first choice when choosing a base camp in the Lofoten Islands as starting point for some amazing adventures.
